What Is Microfiber?

Microfiber is a blend of polyester and polyamide (a type of nylon). Microfibers are 10 times smaller than the average human hair and these microscopic fibers are split in such a way to make them even smaller. This produces exponential amounts of surface area and all of this surface area makes microfiber so absorbent, and gives it's magnetic attraction to dust, dirt and grime. The microscopic fibers get down into invisible crevices in surfaces and lift out contaminants, bacteria and other particles that other fibers can't reach.

Benefits Of Microfiber:

- Because of microfiber's ability to be laundered and re-used hundreds of times, costs are reduced.
- Reduced chemical usage and conserves water.
- Microfiber eliminates chemical smell that may cause problems for people with odor sensitivities.
- Microfiber mops weigh substantially less than conventional string mops.
- Microfiber lifts and traps dirt, dust and allergens leaving a cleaner surface without leaving lint behind.
- Microfiber is nonabrasive on all surfaces.
- Microfiber is very sturdy and can hold up to 7 times its weight.
- There aren't chemicals in microfibers that will wash out or wear away after use.

Cleaning Chemicals & Microfibers:

Chemicals may be used where needed without harming the mops or cloths. However, they are not necessary with microfiber. Studies show that because of its technology, microfiber will clean more effectively when used dry than traditional products do when using chemicals.

Microfiber is non-abrasive on all surfaces, even when used with cleaners and sanitizer. Microfiber ensures that no residue is left on the cleaned surface and also reduces the concentration and amount of the cleaner that is required.

There are a couple things to remember when using chemicals with microfibers:

Dampen the pad or cloth before using it, but do not 'wet' it. If too much water or chemical is used, the crevices that are designed to attract and hold dirt will fill with liquid.

Very few chemicals can harm microfiber, but it is important to stay away from acids. Check warning labels, if the chemical indicates that it will harm plastics, it will most likely harm microfiber.

Laundering:

Laundering microfiber isn't much different than washing other cleaning products. Microfiber should be machine washed at temperatures that do not exceed 200°F. Use color safe detergents with an overall pH under 11. Steer clear of harsh bleaches which will break down the fibers and hinder the microfiber's effectiveness. Tumble dry at temperatures between 130° and 140°F. Temperatures higher than these could potentially harm the product. Microfibers will last 400-500 applications if this laundering advice is followed. Avoid using fabric softeners or dryer sheets, as they will clog the crevices in the fabric and may also reduce the static charge that makes the microfiber effective. Wash microfiber together and avoid washing it with other fabrics that are prone to lint as the microfiber will continue working in the wash and attract the lint.

It is important to be conscious of what other products are included in the wash load. One common mistake is to wash microfiber with products that are prone to lint. If this happens, the microfiber will continue working in the laundry and will collect that lint, making the cleaning process ineffective.

Remember to separate different colored microfibers before their first wash to prevent bleeding.

How To Clean With Microfiber Cloths:

Use a microfiber cloth or mitt for general cleaning. Dampen cloth to clean all hard non-porous surfaces (not natural wood). While no chemicals are necessary to clean, follow your facilities requirements. For natural wood and porous surfaces, use dry cloths and mitts to prevent white spotting. For sanitary reasons, use color coded cloths to clean different areas and avoid cross contamination.

Do not bunch fabric to clean. Fold cloth into quarters and use flat. When cloth is soiled, refold to expose a clean surface. This provides 8 usable surfaces with each cloth.

Glass & Mirror cloths: Do not use glass cleaner with this cloth and do not use this cloth on other surfaces. Lightly dampen with water to clean. Spray bottles may be used to lightly mist the cloth or surface. Start at the top and clean downward using a figure-8 motion, overlapping slightly to ensure coverage.

How To Mop A Room:

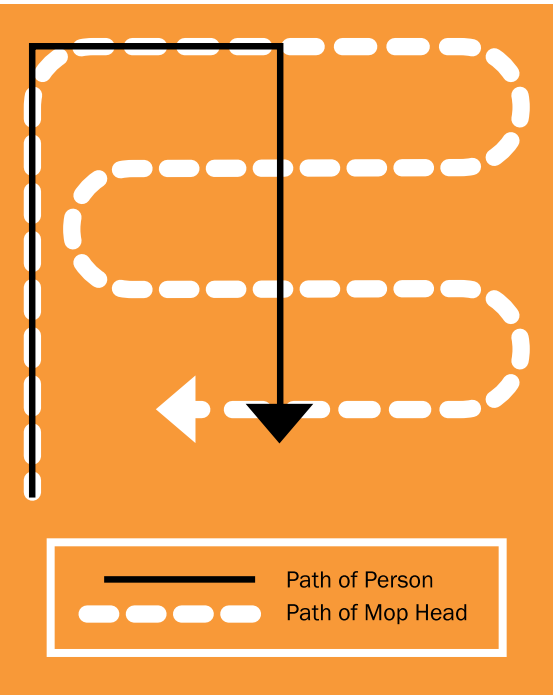

Soak wet mops in a water and detergent solution for at least 4 hours to ensure they have absorbed enough liquid to mop a standard size room.

When using dry mops or dusting, pick up or sweep all debris from the floor and make sure there are no wet spots.

Cleaning spray is not necessary with microfiber dry mops, but when needed, use only about half of the recommended amount. This is the most effective and will save on costs.

Starting in the far corner of the room, begin mopping using figure-8 strokes while moving backwards toward the doorway. When finished with the room (or the wet mop is dry) place your foot on the end of the pad and pull the frame up, peeling the pad away from the base.

Mop each room with a clean pad for maximum effectiveness and to prevent cross-contamination.
